

Pay Attention

{mov}Pay_Attention2{/mov}

Can't see the video? Install Quicktime, or view the presentation in another format.

How Can I Become A Better Teacher?

- Using Internet Resources to Teach the Core Curriculum
- Learning at Higher Levels with Technology
- Classroom Instruction that Works
- Internet Resources at Your Fingertips
- Using the School Computer Lab for Core Curriculum
- T4 Professional Development Opportunities
- T4 Teacher Resources

Teach Me More About...

- A Revision of Bloom's Taxonomy
- Using Google in the Classroom - Google Tools Podcast, Google Docs Podcast, Internet Survival Tools
- Rigor, Relevance, and Relationships
- Blogs (Social Software in the Classroom)

- Wikis
- Podcasts - Podcast Creation Guide (Apple), How to podcast
- Geocaching Games
- Google Earth
- Webquests
- E-Portfolios
- Virtual Manipulatives
- Cellphones in the Classroom - Liz Kolb's Cell Phones As Learning Tools also comes highly recommended.
- iPods in the Classroom
- Many things technology - For tips, tricks, and educational technology know-how, don't miss any of the T4 Tips podcasts.

Download Additional Presentation Formats - Original Version

- View (and subscribe to) the podcast version - See Episode #15
- View the YouTube version of the presentation
- View the TeacherTube version of the presentation

- Download the high-quality version (640x480) - Pay_Attention.mov - Pay_Attention.zip

- Download the Windows-friendly AVI version - Pay_Attention.avi

- Download the PDF version - Pay_Attention.pdf

Download Additional Presentation Formats - Updated (Final Cut) Version

- After speaking with so many different people about Pay Attention, I decided to update it to reflect some of the feedback I had received. This current version is the result. The resulting changes aren't drastic, but the overall result is a little more polished.
- View the YouTube version of the presentation.
- View the TeacherTube version of the presentation.

- Download the high resolution version (640x480) - Pay Attention HiRes.mov
- Download the iPod friendly version - Pay Attention.m4v

International Versions

- Français Updated - Special thanks to Luc Papineau for help in correcting a few syntax and grammar errors.
- Français - Special thanks to Renaud Boisjoly for his excellently crafted translation. This version is high quality H.264.
- Español - Special thanks to María Iliana Castillo for her efforts in connection with this Spanish translation. The Windows Media format is also available.

Special Thanks...

- For the inspiration: Ian Jukes, Karl Fisch, Howard Gardner, Marc Prensky, David Warlick, and Willard Daggett.
- For the stirring background music: Carly Comando. Her moving song every day is used in our podcast with permission.

Permission

- May you use this presentation (in its entirety) to share with other teachers in an effort to get them to become better teachers? Absolutely, please do.
  - May you use the video of the presentation, mix it up, and/or remix it with other content? Sure, as long as you remember to give credit when credit is due.
  - May you use the video and audio, mix it up, and/or remix it with other content? You'd better ask Carly first. She created the music and has only given us permission to use it for this presentation.
- Several people have contacted me about creating a translation - to which I must say: Please do! You may download the updated Pay Attention work files here (zipped, 166MB). The slides were created in PowerPoint (Optima font). Screenshots of the slides were then imported into iMovie to produce the resulting video. Best of luck. Please let me know of any translations or remixes that you make.

About This Presentation

- This presentation, simply entitled Pay Attention, was created by Darren Draper in an effort to motivate teachers to more effectively use technology in their teaching. Since most of today's students can appropriately be labeled as "Digital Learners", why do so many teachers refuse to enter the digital age with their teaching practices?
- Your comments and constructive feedback are greatly appreciated.

<http://t4.jordandistrict.org/payattention>